Provider Profile

Information provided by the provider describing their agency:

The CT Center for Child Development is a non-profit organization dedicated to improving the lives of children with autism, Asperger's Syndrome, and other pervasive developmental disorders. Our goal is to help our students reach their maximum potential and become contributing members of their families and communities. Our instructional methods are based on applied behavior analytic learning principles implemented in school, home, and community settings.

CCCD's center-based school program serves children from 2 years, 9 months through 21 years of age. Transition and follow-up services for students graduating from this program are provided. In addition, CCCD conducts extensive parent training and support programs and offers lectures, seminars, and conferences for parents and other educational providers throughout the state.

CCCD is a private, non-profit, CT state approved school program with a curriculum designed to meet each child's individual educational requirements. Depending on each student's unique strengths and deficits, intensive instruction is provided to teach basic and advanced communication skills, social skills, daily living skills, play skills, pre-academic and academic skills, self-help skills, and leisure and recreational activities. Specific programs are developed to reduce or replace undesirable behaviors with more socially appropriate behaviors. Emphasis is placed on systematic generalization of these skills at home and in the community. Parents work as partners with school personnel to maximize each student's learning potential.

One to one and small group instruction help to increase peer interactions and build positive relationships at CCCD. When children have the prerequisite skills necessary for success, opportunities for interaction with typically developing peers, such as participation in typical classroom settings and local community activities are incorporated into their educational programs.

Ensuring each student's continuing success and enjoyment in the learning process, as well as increasing each child's level of independence are important goals of the program.
